

Pathways

Linking Industry, Vocational and Higher Education

Deakin's accredited pathways give organisations the opportunity to advance talented and motivated employees, providing a clear route for progressing from entry-level vocational programs and industry education programs through to a Masters qualification.

Deakin University's accredited pathways in professional and management education.

We have experience developing accredited pathways for a variety of industries, each with their own industry specific training and requirements.

Why DeakinPrime?

We work closely with clients to develop learning pathways that include a range of management topics relevant to their organisation and industry context. From an employee perspective, they can clearly identify the education required to progress their career.

Our learning pathways also provide options for taking single units from within the awards to suit shorter-term business requirements. This means that employees can undertake 'just-in-time' learning as needed in the short term which can also be accredited towards formal educational qualifications.

Many of Deakin's programs are flexible in duration, have multiple entry and exit points and DeakinPrime consultants can advise on selection from the available units to enable employees to maximise the credits available to them as they progress along their learning pathway.
